Chapter 1 by Phantim

It wasn't your typical romance as in a boy meeting a girl. Rather it was two robots that felt as though they had been built to fit together. Despite the illogical stigma that their program-based love faced, they had found an emotional state comparable to happiness simulations together. Then again, there is always that one organic life-form who comes along to ruin everything...

"hahaha!!!" The boy laughed in sarcasm. "You robots aren't built for love..." He mocked.

But Zoe and Zix linked arms and scooted towards the exit. They wheeled among the flower gardens and exchanged facts.

This was the way robots dated.

Chapter 3 by lysander

It's funny, really, that humans seemed to think love was something specific to only their species. Just as the illusion of supreme intelligence seemed to make them believe in their superiority

Yet the robots knew it was not so

Z03 and Z1X. Two androids who were built to serve humans who built them. Z03's full identification was Z03-1X. They were used for various service in various establishments. This meant Z03's artificial intelligence had to be among the most flexible, to accommodate for the horde of dissatisfied customers it was subjected to daily. Z1X-492, on the other hand, was an assistant doctor shipped to warzones in order to treat civilians caught between crossfire. Z1X's temperament, although simple, was kind, calm, and reassuring, to help prevent panic in its patients.

They met on their routine maintenance trips back to the factories. Z03 came from sector 4 while Z1X came from sector 7, and their transport vehicles happened to be refueling at the same station. Z03 wandered out to recharge its solar powered batteries just as Z1X did the same.

You could say it was love at first sight.

Chapter 4 by Aesthetic

Then again, Z03 was certain that 'love at first sight' was a thing that only happened in the books she was required to keep in her data-base for retail, to give customers recommendations.

Books like "Romeo and Juliet" or "Cinderella". 'Classics', or 'fairy tales' her programming called them. She knew better than to think like that. She did have a better term for it though.

Attraction. The action or power of evoking interest, pleasure, or liking for someone or something. Yes, that was it.

Z1X, on the other hand, categorized it as a chemical reaction firing in his circuits. He'd seen it before in the doctor he was assisting. Love-Sick, he joked.

Yes, he was love-sick. She was attracted. It was love.
